

Tender for Due Diligence Study for the Jerusalem LRT System Red Line – Clarification regarding Data Room and Project Schedule

The Tender Committee at JTMT for the Due Diligence Study for the Jerusalem LRT Red Line has received the following requests for clarifications. Notwithstanding the fact that these requests were received after the date set forth in the ITB for the submission of such requests, the Tender Committee following due consideration has determined that these matters are of importance for all Bidders in the period before the submission of their Bids and has therefore issued the following clarification:

No.	Relevant Section in RFP	Subject	Question	Response
1.	Annex A TOR Section 5.3.2.	Access to the Data Room	“Is this a virtual data room where documents can be assessed online and checked out if required, or is it a conventional data room, supplying hard copies that can be reviewed by the Consultant at JTMT premises in Jerusalem. If the latter is the case, please confirm that copies can be taken. All copies will of course be handled in line with the confidentiality agreement between the Consultant and JTMT.”	The proposed data room is a virtual data room. Documents can be assessed online. The use of the data room will be subject to confidentiality restrictions.
2.	ITB Section 6 Annex A TOR Section 6.	Anticipated schedule Main milestones for implementation of the Work	“Could you please give the indicative date for project start (assignment of the Due Diligence Study)? By this we would like to ensure availability of the proposed personnel.”	The work of the chosen Consultant on this project is expected to commence in February 2018.
